This would describe my experience with Motzko Construction.

Dan Motzko, owner of Motzko Construction, has completed two projects for me. The largest project was a 14 x 22, four-season porch.

I always told Dan that I'd be more than willing to be a reference for him. So when he asked me to put my words down on paper, I realized a slight dilemma. How do I convey my sheer delight with the TOTAL experience I had with Motzko Construction while not coming across like a “paid informant” for them!

The fact is – what's in it for me is the pure enjoyment of spreading the word to others who may be considering home addition projects – you really need to check out Motzko Construction for yourself.

Planning – I found the planning process easy and smooth. I really enjoyed the experience that Dan and his team brought to the table. I'm not the expert so I really wanted some idea sharing so that I could choose the options that best fit my budget and fit the style I was trying to achieve. Mission accomplished.

Communication – I also wanted to be informed along the way and I didn't want any surprises or excuses. The final result – I was extremely pleased with everyone at Motzko Construction, with their communication style and their proactive approach to keeping me updated.

Quality – I wanted quality workmanship. What I received was “fine craftsmanship”. To see our four-season porch come to life and to witness the detail in their work was beyond belief. The finished product is easily to judge from the outside. I also witnessed the building of the foundation and internal structure; of which, most was covered up with finishing material. Today I stand in my new porch and admire the visible craftsmanship while feeling secure having witnessed the underlying construction as well.

In closing, if you have that dream home project in mind and are wondering how and who can get it done for you – call Motzko Construction. At the end of the project, you'll probably want to spread the word to others just like me.
